

2005 Annual Conference with the Council on Foundations
November 3-4
Otesaga Hotel Resort
Cooperstown, NY

The Grantmakers Forum of New York brings together funders from across the state to reflect on their role in preserving the public trust and supporting their communities. Whether your organization is a public charity grantmaker, private foundation or corporate giver, the role of your staff and board is to be stewards of money dedicated to the public good.

The conduct of funders can set the standard for cooperation among the public, private and nonprofit sectors to improve our communities.

- How do your board and staff use their influence and organizational endowment to encourage community improvement?
- What are the principles that guide your work with the nonprofit sector?
- Do you hope your organization is a role model for philanthropy in your community?
- What is the public view of your good works?
- How do you share your hopes and dreams with other grantmakers and the public?

The Program Committee invites you to address these issues at Building Strong and Ethical Grantmakers, the 2005 Annual Conference of the Grantmakers Forum of New York.
